Over the past several months my husband and I have had the great pleasure of working with a true professional—Sagi Paul of Lux Builders.

From our first meeting through to the final door being hung, the process of remodeling our 2 bathrooms was flawless.

The process was smooth and—yes—it was fun! After visiting our home, taking measurements and discussing what we were looking for with my husband, Sagi came back a few weeks later as promised with drawings, estimates in writing and contracts. My husband had met with 4 other contractors and from that first meeting he knew Sagi would be our guy.

The day Sagi met us at our home with the above mentioned drawings, I confessed(?) to him that I was a art/creative director working in the agency world and that I am very particular and all about the details. This bit of info never phased him, it was not a problem.

We were thrilled with all he had to say, the drawings, the estimate and his enthusiasm for the work he does. We were off and running—and the good news—the first stop was shopping! Toilets and sinks and faucets and a tub! Then tile, beautiful tile and he knew the exact place to take me where I could feel comfortable being my crazy design self! It was an exhilarating experience and Sagi was with us every step of the way.

Next came the demolition of our leaky upstairs bathroom. We knew we had leaking water issues and sure enough there were plenty. No problem, everything was fixed properly. Our first inspection with the city was flawless. Over his shoulder on his way out our front door, the inspector said, “those guys from Lux, they always do everything better than they need to.”

Each day I went off to work—other than the progress in the bathrooms—you would never have known they were here. My house was spotless. Every single one of Sagi's craftsman are talented, true artists [and yes other than solid surface and shower doors everyone of Sagi's craftsman are his employees]. The carpenter framer, the electrician, the plumber, the dry wall installer, the painter and the tile master [I give him that name because he is a master of his craft]. And did I mention, they all clean up at the end of every day!?!

And as soon as bathroom one was finished enough for use, bathroom 2 was gone! And with the same talent and expertise [and far less issues than in the previously evil bathroom 1] our downstairs bathroom was done! Including a re-purposing of a hallway linen closet as a new bathroom linen closet, and a tear out and complete replacement of a water damaged bedroom closet [thanks again bathroom number 1 and it's issues]. Plus, all new interior doors throughout our home!

While we are thrilled with the new bathrooms—best holiday gift to ourselves EVER— we were sad to see all our new friends leave for the final time. Crazy I know, but what a great bunch of craftsman we had the opportunity to have creating magic in our home! Now I'm figuring out what else we can remodel so we can work with Sagi Paul, and all our new friends at Lux again!
